Eaton is Newest Sponsor Of Progressive Agriculture Safety Day® Program

Eaton's contribution will make the Safety Day Program possible for more rural youth.

“Based on the Progressive Agriculture Foundation's premise that every injury and death is preventable, safety and health day programs are a proactive approach to the prevention of injuries on farms and ranches,” says Jeff Schick, Eaton's director, global market segment, agriculture, forestry and turf care. “Our sponsorship will allow over 400 additional rural youth to participate in a Safety Day experience that provides education and training to make farm, ranch and rural life safer. Also, the health and safety training related to noise, chemicals, equipment safe guards and personal protective equipment is applicable to future vocations in agriculture, manufacturing, mining, forestry and construction.”
